1 Defendant, Morgan Foley, in his official capacity as City Attorney for the 2 City of El Cajon (“Foley”), respectfully submits the following points and 3 authorities in support of his motion to dismiss the verified complaint pursuant to 4 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6).

5 I.

6 INTRODUCTION

7 On October 13, 2015, plaintiffs filed a complaint against Foley, among 8 others, challenging the constitutionality of California Assembly Bill 775, the 9 Reproductive FACT (Reproductive Freedom, Accountability, Comprehensive 10 Care, and Transparency) Act (hereinafter “Act”) signed by California Governor 11 Edmund Gerald Brown on October 9, 2015. The Act goes into effect January 1, 12 2016. The Act is attached as Exhibit A to plaintiffs’ complaint.

13 Plaintiffs are seeking a declaratory judgment and a preliminary and 14 permanent injunction against enforcement of the Act. They seek to prohibit 15 California State, County of San Diego and City of El Cajon from enforcing or 16 attempting to enforce the Act because they claim it is unconstitutional under the 17 California and United States Constitutions. They further claim the Act is 18 impermissibly vague under the Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment, 19 violates federal statutory law, and generally imposes government compelled 20 speech upon the plaintiff pregnancy centers due to their support for pregnant 21 women, and in ways that undermine the centers’ messages.

22 Plaintiffs’ complaint should be dismissed without leave to amend because 23 the lawsuit is not ripe, the plaintiffs lack standing and therefore this Court lacks 24 subject matter jurisdiction under Article III of the United State Constitution. The 25 plaintiffs have not demonstrated injury-in-fact, that the injury in question is fairly 26 traceable to the defendant's challenged action, and that the injury is one that could 27 be redressed by a favorable decision. As a result any as-applied challenge to the 28 Act fails.

Any facial challenge to the Act also fails as plaintiffs improperly sue Foley in his official capacity. Foley, as City Attorney for the City of El Cajon, did not create the Act or enact the Act. Plaintiffs do not allege any invasion of a legally protected interest which is concrete and particularized, actual or even imminent or the likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. In U.S. v. Stevens, the Court stated, "To succeed in a typical facial attack, [the respondent] would have to establish "that no set of circumstances exists under which [the statute] would be valid", United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 (1987), or that the statute lacks any "plainly legitimate sweep", Washington v. Glucksberg, 521 U.S. 702, 740, n. 7 (1997) (Stevens, J., concurring in judgments) (internal quotation marks omitted).

Plaintiffs' facial challenge to the Act as well as any as-applied challenge to the Act fails as a matter of law as against Foley and thus the complaint should be dismissed without leave to amend.

II.

FACTUAL BACKGROUND

Plaintiffs, National Institute of Family and Life Advocates, Pregnancy Care Clinic, and Fallbrook Pregnancy Center are religious not-for-profit corporations that provide medical or non-medical information and services without charge to their clients. (Complt. at ¶¶ 17, 18, 20, 21, 22.) Plaintiff National Institute of Family and Life Advocates is a national organization with 111 affiliates in California. Two of those affiliates are located in the unincorporated County of San Diego area (Complt. at §2.) Plaintiff Pregnancy Care Clinic is incorporated in California with its principal place of business in the City of El Cajon. (Complt. at 20.)

The purpose of the Act "is to ensure that California residents make their personal reproductive health care decisions knowing their rights and the health care services available to them." See Exhibit A of complaint. The Act would require a

1 licensed covered facility to disseminate specific information about programs such 2 as immediate free or low-cost access to comprehensive family planning services, 3 prenatal care, and abortion for eligible women. The Act would also require an 4 unlicensed facility to disseminate a notice to all clients stating, among other things, 5 that the facility is not licensed as a medical facility by the State of California.
 6 Finally, the Act would authorize the Attorney General, City Attorney, or County 7 Counsel to bring an action to impose a specified civil penalty against covered 8 facilities that fail to comply with the Act's requirements. See Exhibit A of 9 complaint. The Act generally defines what facilities are covered, what information 10 must be disseminated and what the penalties are for violating the Act. See Exhibit 11 A of complaint; California Health and Safety Code Section 123470.

12 III.

13 ARGUMENT

14 Because standing pertains to federal courts' subject matter jurisdiction, it is 15 properly raised in a Rule 12(b)(1) motion to dismiss. See St. Clair v. City of Chico, 16 880 F.2d 199, 201 (9th Cir. 1989); see also, White v. Lee, 227 F.3d 1214, 1242 (9th 17 Cir. 2000).

18 Federal Rule of Civil Procedure section 12(b)(6) allows a defendant to attack 19 a complaint for failure to state a claim upon which relief can be granted. A 20 complaint may be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) where the complaint either 21 asserts a legal theory that is not cognizable as a matter of law or fails to allege facts 22 to sufficiently support a cognizable legal claim. See SmileCare Dental Group v.
 23 Delta Dental Plan of Cal., Inc., 88 F.3d 780, 783 (9th Cir. 1996); Bell Atlantic 24 Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 554, 555-556 (2007) (allegations must provide 25 plausible grounds to infer that plaintiff is entitled to relief.) A complaint should be 26 dismissed if it appears beyond doubt that plaintiff can prove no set of facts in 27 support of his claim which would entitle him to relief. See Van Buskirk v. CNN, 28 Inc., 284 F.3d 977, 980 (9th Cir. 2002).

1 A complaint must contain “more than labels of conclusions” or “a formulaic 2 recitation of the elements of a cause of action . . . .” Twombly, supra at 555. A 3 plaintiff must allege “enough facts” to “nudge[] [the] claim[s] across the line from 4 conceivable to plausible. Id. at 570. Legal conclusions, however, need not be 5 taken as true merely because they are cast in the form of factual allegations. Ileto 6 v. Glock, Inc., 349 F.3d 1191, 1200 (9th Cir. 2003). When ruling on a motion to 7 dismiss, a court may consider the facts alleged in the complaint, documents 8 attached to the complaint, documents relied upon but not attached to the complaint 9 when authenticity is not contested, and matters of which the court takes judicial 10 notice. Lee v. Los Angeles, 250 F.3d 668, 688–89 (9th Cir. 2001).

11 There are two types of constitutional challenges, namely “facial” challenges 12 and “as-applied” challenges. A facial challenge is one in which “no application of 13 the statute would be constitutional.” Sabri v. United States, 541 U.S. 600, 609 14 (2004). An “as applied” challenged is one “under which the plaintiff argues that a 15 statute, even though generally constitutional, operates unconstitutional as to him or 16 her because of the plaintiff’s particular circumstance.” Tex. Workers’ Comp.
 17 Comm’n v. Garcia, 893 S.W.2d 504, 518 (Tex. 1995). Since there has been no 18 application of the Act, no enforcement of the Act and the Act has not gone into 19 effect yet, there cannot be an as-applied challenge.

20 The law strongly favors as-applied challenges over facial challenges since 21 they are more consistent with the goals of resolving disputes and deferring to the 22 legislative process as much as possible. See Wash. State Grange v. Wash. State 23 Republican Party, 128 S. Ct. 1184, 1190–91(2008) (discussing the preference for 24 as-applied challenges to facial challenges). Facial challenges should be used 25 sparingly and only in exceptional cases. See Ayotte v. Planned Parenthood of N.
 26 New England, 546 U.S. 320, 328–30 (2006) (discussing the Court’s preference for 27 as-applied challenges). The Supreme Court stated, “a “facial challenge to a 28 legislative Act is, of course, the most difficult challenge to mount successfully”

1 and will only succeed if a litigant can “establish that no set of circumstances exists 2 under which the Act would be valid.” United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 3 (1987).

4 A. PLAINTIFFS DO NOT HAVE STANDING TO CHALLENGE THE 5 ACT; THE LAWSUIT IS NOT RIPE FOR REVIEW

6 Regardless of whether a plaintiff raises a facial challenge or an “as-applied” 7 challenge, the plaintiff must still demonstrate standing to bring an action in federal 8 court. Article III standing contains three elements: (1) an injury in fact; (2) a 9 causal connection between the injury and the conduct complained of; and (3) 10 likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Lujan v.
11 Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560–61 (1992).

12 The first element of the standing inquiry, injury in fact, requires “an invasion 13 of a legally protected interest which is (a) concrete and particularized . . . and (b) 14 ‘actual or imminent, not ‘conjectural’ or ‘hypothetical.’” Lujan v. Defenders of 15 Wildlife, supra, at 560 (citations omitted). Plaintiffs must demonstrate that they 16 suffered an “injury” because of the challenged portion of the Ordinance. Lujan v.
17 Defenders of Wildlife, supra, 504 U.S. at 560. A plaintiff must show that “he has 18 sustained or is immediately in danger of sustaining some direct injury as the result 19 of the challenged official conduct.” 4805 Convoy, Inc. v. City of San Diego, 183 20 F.3d 1108, 1111–12 (9th Cir. 1999). Thus, a “plaintiff generally must assert his 21 own legal rights and interests, and cannot rest his claim to relief on the legal rights 22 or interest of third parties.” Id. (quoting Secretary of State of Maryland v. Joseph 23 H. Munson Co., 467 U.S. 947, 958 (1984). Because “the Constitution requires 24 something more than a hypothetical intent” to engage in conduct affected by the 25 law, plaintiffs must “articulate a concrete plan” to engage in conduct subject to the 26 law.... Lopez v. Candaele, 630 F.3d 775, 787 (9th Cir. 2010).

27 Plaintiffs’ first amended complaint fails to allege facts that demonstrate that 28 they have or will suffer any injury as a result of the challenged portion of the Act

1 or that the likelihood of any alleged injury will be redressed by a favorable 2 decision. The Act is not even in effect yet; there has been no injury in fact.
 3 Because plaintiffs do not allege any invasion of a legally protected interest which 4 is concrete and particularized, actual or even imminent or the likelihood that the 5 injury will be redressed by a favorable decision they do not have standing to 6 challenge the Act.

7 B. PLAINTIFFS HAVE NOT SHOWN A GENUINE THREAT OF 8 IMMINENT PROSECUTION AND THEREFORE FAIL TO SATISFY 9 THE CASE OR CONROVERSY REQUIREMENT OF ARTICLE III OF 10 THE CONSTITUTION

11 There must be “a genuine threat of imminent prosecution.” Thomas v.
 12 Anchorage Equal Right Commission, 220 F.3d 1134, 1139 (9th Cir. 2000) (en 13 banc). “In evaluating the genuineness of a claimed threat of prosecution” the 14 Plaintiffs must articulate a “concrete plan” to violate the law in question and the 15 Court should look to see “whether the prosecuting authorities have communicated 16 a specific warning or enforcement or threat to initiate proceedings” and look at 17 “the history of past prosecution or enforcement under the challenged statute.” See 18 id. Although the plaintiffs have indicated their intent to violate the law, the Thomas 19 Court held that “[t]he Constitution required something more than a hypothetical 20 intent to violate the law” and “[a] general intent to violate a statute at some 21 unknown date in the future does not rise to the level of an articulated, concrete 22 plan.” Id. at 1139.

23 There have been no allegations that Foley, as City Attorney for the City of 24 El Cajon, has “communicated a specific warning or threat to initiate proceedings 25 “against the plaintiffs. See id. Plaintiffs’ argument that mere passage of the Act 26 represents an imminent, concrete and reliable threat that defendants will enforce 27 the Act against plaintiffs has been rejected by the court. This argument is 28 “essentially another way of saying that the mere existence of a statute can create a

1 constitutionally sufficient direct injury, a position that we have rejected before and 2 decline to adopt now.” See id. The 9th Circuit reiterated that there must “be a 3 genuine threat of imminent prosecution” and the “the threat of enforcement must at 4 least be ‘credible,’ not simply ‘imaginary or speculative.’” See id. at 1139-1140.
 5 There are no credible, real or threatened enforcement actions alleged in the 6 complaint. Additionally, there is no requirement in the Act that the City Attorney 7 institute a civil enforcement action against those who violate the Act; it merely 8 gives them the authority or discretion to do so. See Exhibit A to the complaint.

9 Finally there is no history of enforcement under the statute. Significantly, the 10 Thomas Court held “[u]nlike other cases in which we have hold that the 11 government’s ‘active enforcement’ of a statute rendered the plaintiff’s fear of 12 prosecution reasonable, here the record of past enforcement is limited, was civil 13 only, not criminal, and in any event was in each case precipitated by the filing of 14 complaints by potential tenants.” See id. 1140-41. The Act is not effective yet and 15 thus there is no history of past enforcement. It also does not authorize the City 16 Attorney to arrest or criminally prosecute any offenders. Under the three prong test 17 articulated by the 9th circuit, plaintiffs do not sufficiently allege “genuine threat of 18 prosecution” and therefore fails to satisfy the “case or controversy” requirement of 19 Article III of the Constitution. Accordingly, this Court lacks subject matter 20 jurisdiction over the case.

21 C. ANY CONSTITUTIONAL CHALLENGES AGAINST THE ACT AS 22 APPLIED TO FOLEY ARE UNTENABLE

23 Plaintiffs do not allege they have been injured by any application of the Act 24 as stated above therefore any “as applied” challenged to the Act fails. Similarly, 25 any facial challenge to the Act fails too. Regardless, any facial challenges of the 26 Act cannot be brought against Foley as the City Attorney for the City of El Cajon 27 did not draft the Act or enact it.
 28

1 “A facial challenge to the constitutional validity of a statute or ordinance 2 considers only the text of the measure itself, not its application to the particular 3 circumstances of an individual.” Tobe v. City of Santa Ana, 9 Cal.4th 1069, 1084 4 (1995). “To support a determination of facial unconstitutionality, voiding the 5 statute as a whole, petitioners cannot prevail by suggesting that in some future 6 hypothetical situation constitutional problems may possibly arise as to the 7 particular application of the statute.... Rather, petitioners must demonstrate that 8 the act’s provisions inevitably pose a present total and fatal conflict with applicable 9 constitutional prohibitions.” Arcadia Unified School Dist. v. State Dept. of 10 Education, 2 Cal.4th 251, 267 (1992). “All presumptions favor the validity of a 11 statute. The court may not declare it invalid unless it is clearly so.” Tobe, supra at 12 p. 1102. “A facial challenge to a legislative [a]ct is, of course, the most difficult 13 challenge to mount successfully since the challenger must establish that no set of 14 circumstances exists under which the [a]ct would be valid.” United States v.
 15 Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 (1987). A facial challenge is a challenge to an entire 16 legislative enactment or provision. Foti v. City of Menlo Park, 146 F.3d 629, 635 17 (9th Cir. 1998) (explaining that a statute is facially unconstitutional if “it is 18 unconstitutional in every conceivable application, or it seeks to prohibit such a 19 broad range of protected conduct that it is unconstitutionally overbroad.”)

20 To succeed on a facial challenge under the Equal Protection Clause, the 21 Plaintiffs must show “that no set of circumstances exists under which the [a]ct 22 would be valid.” Salerno, supra at 745. The first step in an equal protection 23 analysis is to identify the classification of groups. Freeman v. City of Santa Ana, 24 68 F.3d 1180, 1187 (9th Cir. 1995). “To accomplish this, a plaintiff can show that 25 the law is applied in a discriminatory manner or imposes different burdens on 26 different classes of people.” Id. Based on the class identified, the next step is to 27 determine the appropriate level of scrutiny. Id. “[U]nless a classification warrants 28 some form of heightened review because it jeopardizes exercise of a fundamental

1 right or categorizes on the basis of an inherently suspect characteristic, the Equal 2 Protection Clause requires only that the classification rationally further a legitimate 3 state interest.” Nordlinger v. Hahn, 505 U.S. 1, 10 (1992). Under the rational 4 basis test, a “classification must be upheld against equal protection challenge if 5 there is any reasonably conceivable state of facts that could provide a rational basis 6 for the classification.” Heller v. Doe by Doe, 509 U.S. 312, 320 (1993). “Social 7 and economic legislation . . . that does not employ suspect classifications or 8 impinge on fundamental rights must be upheld against equal protection attack 9 when the legislative means are rationally related to a legitimate governmental 10 purpose. Moreover, such legislation carries with it a presumption of rationality 11 that can only be overcome by a clear showing of arbitrariness and irrationality.”
 12 Hodel v. Indiana, 452 U.S. 314, 331–332 (1981).

13 To survive a void for vagueness challenge, an ordinance or statute must 14 “give the person of ordinary intelligence a reasonable opportunity to know what is 15 prohibited, so that he may act accordingly.” Grayned v. City of Rockford, 408 U.S.
 16 104, 108 (1972). “A law is void for vagueness if persons ‘of common intelligence 17 must necessarily guess at its meaning and differ as to its application. . . .’ The 18 offense to due process lies in both the nature and consequences of vagueness.” 19 City of Mesquite v. Aladdin's Castle, Inc., 455 U.S. 283, 290 n. 12 (1982) (quoting 20 Aladdin's Castle, Inc. v. City of Mesquite, 630 F.2d 1029, 1037 (5th Cir.1980). To 21 bring a successful facial challenge outside the context of the First Amendment, 22 “the challenger must establish that no set of circumstances exists under which the 23 [statute] would be valid.” United States v. Salerno, 481 U.S. 739, 745 (1987); see 24 also Vill. of Hoffman Estates v. Flipside, Hoffman Estates, Inc., 455 U.S. 489, 495 25 (1982) (vagueness challenges to statutes that do not involve First Amendment 26 violations must be examined as applied to the defendant).

27 Plaintiffs have not demonstrated that the Act’s provisions inevitably pose a 28 present total and fatal conflict with applicable constitutional prohibitions as

1 required and have improperly suggested hypothetical situations that may possibly 2 arise as to the particular application of the statute. Irrespective, Foley, in his 3 official capacity as City Attorney for the City of El Cajon, is the wrong party to sue 4 under any facial challenge. It is untenable. The City of El Cajon did not write the 5 Act or enact the Act. Thus, the lawsuit should be dismissed against Foley.
 6 Nonetheless, Plaintiffs' facial challenge to the Act fails as a matter of law for 7 reasons discussed above.

8 IV.

9 CONCLUSION

10 For foregoing reasons, Foley requests that the court dismiss plaintiffs' 11 complaint in its entirety against Foley, without leave to amend.
